Spoke to Darren, he said auto pilot would have been ok,, he would've hand flown a little, since he favors hand flying in some situations,

He also mentioned, and I agree, the throttles were surging because of the increase and decrease of airspeed and turbulence.

When the throttle's Hunt and Surge, it's best to dis-engage the auto throttles, so you as a passenger don't feel / hear the engine surging trying to keep a predetermined airspeed.
