I am camping in the woods now with very few places getting reception. Not sure if you'll get this at all.

The delay has been multi-faceted. Me waiting to hear from my attorneys was the primary cause. I now understand that given the new tax code very little would go to me if we are in the range of any of the numbers we were discussing.

As I deal with Jerry, I suppose all other things need not stop.

As you know, a major component to any resolution is the sincere public apology I understand you are willing to give. I'll spend some time working on what I think that would look like and see if we are in the ballpark on that component. My guess, based on our conversations and your previous email, is that we are.

I'll put something together within the next hour or so.
