I spoke =ith Richard today. He advises, among other things, that it is not =necessary to get a tax lawyer involved because we can structure any =potential settlement in the form of a substantial distribution to you leaving the balance of the trust for them to do with as they =lease. He says such a settlement will not have any adverse tax

=consequences to you. I will assume that you are satisfied with =ichard's advise unless I hear from you to the contrary and will not seek tax counsel. As I think I told you, we do not have tax =xpertise in our firm.

At this =oint then, I will contact Max's lawyer and tell him to set up a =eeting with Harry's lawyer for all three lawyers to decide =hether mediation might be useful at this time. I will keep you =pprised.

I got your =mail of this afternoon regarding gifts/support. Can you connect =e with Anthony Arnove?

Thanks, Noam. We are getting a tax attorney involved, =s we discussed last week.

It would be =elpful to have a more fulsome explanation of the many ways in which you =ave provided for your children and grand children. I can see an =ffective opening statement in a mediation, if we get there, outlining with some detail all of the support you have already given to =hem. It doesn't need to be audit-ready, just a list with =ome approximate values.
