Hello Jeffrey! How are you?

I'm reaching out to ask if you'd consider helping me with tuition for yoga teacher training. I always thought of yoga as a source of additional income that will be great to combine with modeling while am still on the O-1 visa. Lately I've been getting inquiries through my social media and friends/acquaintances always asked me to teach especially when I post my videos of it. I have many times been told that I have certain unique facilities in my practice that were unusual and interesting for others to grasp. I always wanted to share my practice with people that were interested but am lacking structure/ teaching techniques. I have been practicing it every day for more than 10 years and have accumulated a lot of knowledge that isn't only theoretical but also practical (had many health issues resolved by committing to doing certain exercise daily) and would be so glad to turn it into something of use to others, am particularly interested in coming up with programs for men's health as well as for women, addressing most common issues for both genders. But before I start doing it am looking to take a 200 hour yoga teacher training at one of the studios in the city. It's quite expensive that is why I'm reaching out for help if you think it's a good idea. I completely understand if not and will be grateful to hear your feedback.

Thank you so much!
