Luis was here for a bit this morning. He looked =t all the floors and took notes on what phase each one was in. He said =e would be in touch with you, Rich.

The scratch =n the master is visible and not in a place that can be easily covered. = can't imagine JE wouldn't want it repaired, but to do =o will involve stripping the master back down and sanding, then putting =ll the coats back on.

Also, I asked him about =iscoloration around the edges. He said it was from condensation in the =alls. He said the only thing that can really be done is that they can =o around the edges with a fine line of a matching paint they have that =lends with the floor which would be recommended unless we're =lanning to add trim or quarter round.

See =ttached photos of discoloration and scratch.
