
From: Michael Wolff [REDACTED]
Sent: Sunday, March 3, 2019 6:29 PM
To: Jeffrey Epstein
Subject: Crisis management

I just spoke to my friend Oliver Lloyd who runs the London-based PR group, Brown, Lloyd, James. I believe I had you speak to him once=before when the Maxwell things seemed to be coming to trial. They are, to =y mind, superior crisis management people. The drawback is that, while the= have a New York office, most of their resources are concentrated in Londo=. On the other hand, that might be an advantage too: they aren't scare= off like many US firms will be. Anyway, he believes they could staff up a=d handle an assignment that might be largely based in New York. I'm se= to speak further to him and one of his partners this afternoon just to su=ply more background, if that's okay with you. And, if that seems promi=ing, would propose that you, with or without me, have a call tomorrow and =udge whether you'd like him to come to New York to meet.

m