

---

From: jeffrey E. <jeevacation@gmail.com>
Sent: Thursday, September 7, 2017 12:54 AM
To: Masha Drokova
Subject: Re: Question

Never

On Th=, Sep 7, 2017 at 12:41 AM Masha Drokova <[REDACTED]> wrote:

can I ask for a brief business advice? when you see an oppor=unity and want to invest in company and they don't seem like that want=your investment would you still push them to take your money?

I have one mentor who says: if investor sees the mountain ahead of him he&#9;d turn opposite direction (an entrepreneur would climb on it or dig a tu=nel etc).

I'm a little confused what to do because I have a tendency to make peop=e do what I want but it might be not the best approach for an investor.

What do you think? Have you ever forced people to take your money?

--

conversation-id 32323 date-last-viewed 0 date-received 1504745649 flags 8590195713 gmail-label-ids 7 6
remote-id 747198