Especially this: =quot;Finally, Mr. Epstein has gone to prison and made enormous monetary settlements relying on his negotiated agreement. Finality seems unthinkable, and the public court of heresy is much more relevant than the legal court. It seems brave of Starr and the others to take a stand like this in the NYT, while Harvard Law students are demonstrating against their prof Sullivan, because he dares to work as=Weinstein's defense attorney, and Catherine MacKinnon gets tenure there. The current generation is apparently no longer making much of a distinction between the legal system and their politics.
