
From: John Steele <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Tuesday, July 18, 2017 2:27 PM
To: jeffrey E.
Subject: Forward From Hacker News

Jeffrey,

I wanted to forward you a comment chain from Hacker News, the Silicon Valley tech site that is a big aggregator of Nautilus. Not the kind of people that you would expect to buy a print magazine. I do hope we're not "too nice to survive".

john

DiabloD3 10 hours ago [-]

How many people on HN have decided to pay the Nautilus subscription?

reply

askafriend <<https://news.ycombinator.com/user?id=askafriend>> 1 hour ago [-]

I just bought one. Loving the content so far. Totally worth the price to help them stay independent and pay the bills (they're a nonprofit).

It's super easy to buy one too and it feels like an honest business. For example, the print version includes Online/Kindle/iPad and the price is extremely fair for a year subscription.

They don't even require a subscription for you to read - they don't paywall much of their content.

reply

tbatchelli <<https://news.ycombinator.com/user?id=tbatchelli>> 6 hours ago [-]

At least one, myself. It's beautiful in actual print and I feel much smarter when I read it. In my case it jolts me out of the tech-tunnel-vision and the mix of sciences and humanities I find it refreshing. I kick myself for not reading it more often.

reply

ericd <<https://news.ycombinator.com/user?id=ericd>> 4 hours ago [-]

I second this, they have a very, very good print designer, and they splurge for nice paper. That's all paired with good writing on interesting topics. It feels like luxurious reading. It may be too nice to survive, though.

reply

throwaway284534 <<https://news.ycombinator.com/user?id=throwaway284534>> 7 hours =g

John Steele
Publisher & Editorial Director
Nautilus
25 Broadway, 9th Floor
New York, NY 10004
[REDACTED] x 02
www.nautil.us
[REDACTED]

=