Maybe the kid was just looking for a reaction in order to have closer guidance, not only by having someone telling him but having someone teaching him.

quite the contrary you tell the child , you dont know how to drive it takes time to learnn the kid STEALS the car and crashes it. . you forgive him , you tell him =A0 his actions have consequences , but he steals the car again= runs over some other kids , and then whines =that he doesnt know how to drive. .

I have never said that. You are so used in manipulating people that you constantly have to twist the sentences your way. What I said is that you don't let a child drive alone a car that YOU gave him and let him go faster when he doesn't know how to drive=just because he is having fun when you are aware he is going to crash BUT =you don't kick him out of the car either. You sit next to him and you teach him how to drive by turning the steering wheel if he goes off track and=pulling the break if you need to (you can't do that through a phone or by email).

What you have done after giving=the car to the kid is kicking him out after he drove too fast leaving him alone with no car in the middle of the highway saying "I wish you well&=uot; knowing he is going to die hitte by another car.

End of the story: the kid is obviously happy and grateful he received a car as a gift because without it he couldn't have drove until =here he is now. However he cannot continue the journey stranded on a highway.
