I am fairly confident that we can with regard to the flip down sink.

What I am not sure about is the toilet assembly. I need to take a critical look and measurements on the toilet assembly, inboard shroud, structures, plumbing, etc. to see exactly what we can do and how far outboard we can push the line.

I will have a better feel after my guys are on the aircraft for a couple of hours and remove some items to provide visual access.

Are you back in NY? Do you want to meet? When would you like for me to start preparing your proposal? We are getting very close to the "potential input date of April 17th"...

Best Regards,

Eric

I am working with my engineer on a solution to replace the pocket door with a hinged door and reworking the existing hinged door on the fwd lavatory.

I do not believe that the lav door and newly proposed cabin door can be even with the existing avionics panels as the toilet assembly and likely the flip down sink protrude further inboard than the avionics panels.
