That quanta are mental and therefore travel outside of spacetime faster than light whole,

While still a monism, Leibniz's universe is dual aspect, more complex than Einstein's, features a spacetime aspect. Leibniz's universe also features a mental aspect or Quanta, which are mental particles, can therefore travel faster than light, i.e. at infinite speed, enabling the Einstein-Podolsky-Rosen phenomenon

Bohm's Implicate-Explicate universe is seemingly dual aspect, but is not a true monism Leibniz's universe, since the mental and physical are simply Cartesian, i.e. two parts of a not truly dual aspect.
