Brad as previously mentioned, we don't feel that statement is tech=ically accurate. The numbers on the forms filed by Apollo entities would b= different than the numbers on the forms filed by Leon because they own di=ferent percentages of the various underlying foreign entities. Also we know Apollo did not themselves file all required=forms, e.g. 5471s, for certain years so there would need to be a carveback=for that. I think the sentence I proposed earlier today is probably the be=t we can do on this particular point given the facts that exist. Or perhaps we can say "substantiall= similar to" rather than "essentially the same" if Apollo i= comfortable with that statement.

Brian/jeffrey-cld both of you =ive with the following language at the end of the second paragraph of the =ackground
Section:

"Finally, the information in the International Information Returns previously filed by the Apollo entities is essentially the same as the information included in the applicable International Information Returns being filed today by the Taxpayers."

If the two of you sign-off I will run by Apollo legal and tax for final confirmation.
