I would be curious to know the=age distribution of the population in ancient Greece though it would =A0be hard to figure out and no doubt be affected by period episodes of cat=strophic war.

My best guess still is that amo= each age cohort from age 5, there was still huge mortality in each decad= of life so by age 35 over 50% would have died. For men, the largest cause=of death would be accidents(40%), and for women it would be childbir=h (25% mortality)

The reason this matters is =hat as a society you would consider dying at 40 to be totally normal= and would develop a reverence for the 1% who made it to 70 and above. =A0
