Please see attached today's position. It is improving but still not positive.

Let me know what you think about my trading at DB. I understand your frustration with my not taking my losses quickly enough. I also think that I should have fewer positions. I made the mistake of trying to replicate my old portfolios but it is easy for me to adapt to a new paradigm and do fewer trades. My focus was just on locking in gains and I was hoping that a diversified portfolio would allow me to find some good gains in some of my positions more quickly than others. Fewer positions would have been easier to manage, especially in the face of a government shutdown.
