I agree we are not where I have hoped to be, but we have provided more design information, and made some good progress on several items. Because we are still discussing some base conceptual issues, I can't release a team to move full-step ahead. Here's where I think we stand on each area, and what we need to do to get to the next level.

For the main residence areas, we really need some direction as to which of the two latest schemes to move forward with.

- I thought we had a good basic direction after your visit, including the layout of the stairs, basic terrace layout and general living room location. We re-did the entire model of this area to reflect this. We are still refining some views and final elevations. (See image1.pdf, attached.)
- Later we were asked to study the new terrace layout, with the big terrace area at road level. We are concerned that there just isn't enough room to fit everything in, and Gary has told us moving the service road north is not feasible. (See image2.pdf, attached.)
- Do you have a preferred version we can really start to get into and develop?</=>

For the pool area, we are splitting our time between trying to give Gary what he needs for the main building (despite the fact that it is not "designed" yet), and modeling the pool-side cabanas. Again, I am concerned that this will be built before it is designed, but we are running with the direction given to us.

- We sent Gary a few revised versions of the floor and roof plans, and a basic section. I think that is set.
- Gary has asked us to lock out the interior elevations and electrical, so he can review it with you. We are working on that.
- We are revising the pool-side cabanas per your comments – but all we have been told is "too massive, try more open".

I will send you the views of the living room from the screening room terrace today, and the door comparisons for the pool building. If we can determine a primary direction for each of these areas, we can really move forward with the details.

Thanks,

it is not the scheme, but the roadway form the library that =s drawn, without attention to the many photos..I recognize that you are sp=nding time trying to find a solution, i am confused how one is proposed that hangs off the cliff.. it is the road from the lib=ary to the service road , opposite the kichen that is once again a fiction= the east side ,may allow us to cheat. Gary, you had s=me more specific reservations about this layout when spoke earlier. =an you convey them to Jeffrey? If there is a way to move the road, we need to know where accurately from the surveyor.

We never modeled the =ew library, as it was away from the area we are focusing on, but we have i= now (as best we can from the photos and limited drawings). I will send you some new images tomorrow.

warwick.. I immediately sent to tom,, his plans are not doable for many reasons,, the road to the library hangs off the cliff.. I asked that he use the topo.. I am not the professional. But immediately see it doesn't work,, you have gotten photos and topos, and tom was there .. How can i help. this is silly,, your sketch up guy needs to put some of this on his plan,, i still have yet to see the living room from the screening room terrace.. I am available all day today or tomorrow.

Jeffrey,

Here is the latest plan study G-9 based on the enclosed sketch you sent us last week.

The cascading stairs are gone and it opens up the whole center area. In order to keep the symmetry of the plan, the newly proposed stairs to the east are reaching onto the road.

I think you anticipated that as well based on your sketch. We will have to verify if this is doable. The plaza at level +37 is a bit too large but it may work incorporating it to the road.

We have also moved the Living Room as you had suggested slightly to the northeast.

The spacing between the office and the Living Room is now 25', exactly the same distance between the bedroom and kitchen.

I am on a business trip the rest of the week and returning Monday.

Warwick will be back Thursday for any comments and/or revisions.

Hope you are well and talk to you next week.

Tom
