Greetings Mr. Epstein,

I have attached photos =or you regarding what I came across this week, and will outline briefly th= series of events:

On Monday, March 19, I went to your Library to =ee if the Aquarium photos project was in progress or completed. When I =aw that the murals were not yet in place, I entered the Library itself to =ee if John had at least started to prep. The library was extremely warm= Arran was called and appraised of the situation. When I met him on =he way to the library, he said he had checked it on Saturday and everythin= seemed fine. I told him not only did the library feel very warm, but i= felt significantly cooler outside, and it was not a very cool day on Mond=y. I continued with the photographs, but when he caught up with me a li=tle later, he said the thermostat was reading 74 degrees.

Today, March 21, I returned to the library for the aquarium photos sin=e I was told that the project had been completed. I went into the libra=y again to see if it felt any cooler than Monday, which it do not. [REDACTED] office door was open, so I entered and immediately saw that the the=mostat was reading 90 degrees. The dehumidifier indicated that the buck=t was full and the humidity reading was high.

I felt it would be irresponsible of me to not bring this type of discove=y to your attention, especially since it has been an ongoing issue on your=punch list.

Respectfully submitted,

Daphne
