- &nbs=; France's new government has annou=ced EUR7.2bn of tax rises, including one-off levies on wealthy households and big corporatio=s, on Wednesday. "In its first major raft of economic measures since Fra=cois Hollande was elected president in May promising to avoid the painful austeri=y seen elsewhere in Europe, the government targeted companies and the rich wit= tax hikes," writes the UK's Daily Telegraph. France is attem=ting to cut its public deficit from 5.2% of GDP last year to an EU limit of 3% in 2013.
- &nbs=; France also announced an increase in taxe= on all foreign second holiday home owners. They will now be liable to a 35.5% tax o= rental income from January 1, 2012 and 34.5% tax and on any profits made fro= selling it with effect from end of this month.
- &nbs=; The WSJ <<http://online.wsj.c=m/article/BT-CO-20120704-705184.html>> reports German Chancellor Angela Merkel's party has gained some support after the European Summit. Me=kel's popularity rose from 34% to 36%.
- &nbs=; Finland continues to voice opposition to t=e way the ESM will be used. "A June 29 statement from the 17 euro-area lea=ers stripping the European Stability Mechanism of its preferred creditor status i= Spain was incomplete," Bloomberg reports Martti Salmi, a Finnish Fin=nce Ministry official, as saying.
- &nbs=; In Spain, the country's high cour= has opened a fraud probe into Rodrigo Rato, the former IMF chief who was until recently =chairman of Bankia. "The investigation into Mr Rato, along with 32 o=her top Bankia executives, is likely to draw in some of the most prominent names in =Spanish politics and business," writes the FT.
- &nbs=; Is Cyprus the new Iceland? Cypriot presid=nt Demetris Christofias said on Wednesday Russia is offering more favorable bai=out terms than the Troika. Estimates say the country requires around EUR12.5bn i= aid.
- &nbs=; On Tuesday, the ECB announced it would ca= the amount of government-guaranteed debt that banks can post as collateral in re=urn for its loans at current levels.

· &nbsp; Reuters reported Tuesday that Eurozone finance ministers need more time to finalize the bailout for Spanish banks and that the deadline has been pushed back to July 20.
