Rich

regarding this morning conversation about the Rock Wall proposal and the Bosses concerns I wish to confirm the following personal The Various Mockups shown to the Boss were constructed by Jose and his 6 crew, not by Zorro required time frame None of the existing crew have the skill set to construct walls of this nature, quality and in the

As discussed with the Boss on his last visit, as wall sections are completed, Zorro Personal would be performing irrigation and planting. In the mean time they are working on the irrigation at Lodge, which will be completed this week.

Ranch Central Irrigation starts next week. Spring clean up and maintenance of all locations continues

Regarding the construction of the walls

Due to the shallow nature of the walls and the 4% grade the Walls are to be built on, Jose is recommending footing and glue to hold them in place.

If the Boss feels this is not necessary, then Jose will construct walls without support.

Lastly if I felt comfortable self performing this to the required standard and time frame we would mostly certainly would.

=br class="">
please advise on how we are to proceed

Regards Brice

=div style="font-size:small" class="">attached photos of the first Wall M=ck Up for your consideration

The Dry-s=ack would have minor footing and no mortar, a lot more labor intensive and w=uld use lot more material.

T=e Dry-stack wall height 24w x 18h,

One large dump truck load will do approx 40ft of wall which do you prefer, dry-stack or side stack

Attac=ed drawing for your consideration

Can you=please confirm the wall heights,

24W x 12H fo= outer mowed grassed areas

1=W x 18H for middle beds stipa grass areas

18 W x 24H for center bed with trees and lavender bed.

Is this OK ?
