Mrs. Fecalberger says, "Doctor, I don't know what to do. More and more often my husband seems to lose his temper for no reason, and it's scaring me."

The doctor says, "I'm sure I can fix that. Whenever it seems your husband is getting angry, take a big sip of water and swish it around in your mouth. Swish it around and around and don't swallow it until he leaves the room or goes to bed and falls asleep."

Two weeks later Mrs. Fecalberger walks back into the doctor's office looking fresh as a daisy.

She says, "Doctor, you're magnificent. Every time my husband starts getting upset, I take a big gulp of water and swish it around in my mouth, swish and swish, and he calms right down. It's fantastic. But you've got to tell me, how does a gulp of water do that?"

The doctor says, "It's not the water, Mrs. Fecalberger. It's you keeping your stupid mouth shut that does the trick."
