What an exciting day for us! Yesterday we announced that we plan to join forces with Nokia to build the future of digital health together.

We at Withings have a big vision to create “smarter products for healthy living.” We're thrilled about this opportunity to unite our teams to create a world-class group of innovative and committed professionals.

We've been impressed with the plans the Nokia team has shared with us both for Preventive Health and Patient Care. As soon as we close the deal, we can start working together to determine our way forward as one team with a broad but focused portfolio of incredible products and innovations.

And although this is big news, user satisfaction remains our main concern — you can be sure that, yes, Withings applications and products will continue to work in the same way.

Kind regards,
