Dear Mr. Jeffrey Epstein

Please our hosts along with Jean-Yves Ollivier on Thursday October 23rd for a private screening of the extraordinary documentary PLOT FOR PEACE. Invite is attached.

In the 1980s Jean-Yves Ollivier was a commodities trader who used business connections and private funds to negotiate an African maze. Under the codename Monsieur Jacques, he acted as an unofficial diplomat, influencing the course of talks between African and western political leaders.

At a time when all southern Africa was at war, he acted as an intermediary for secret, high-level contacts within the "frontline states" and South Africa. He negotiated prisoner exchanges, including that of two anti-apartheid militants held in South Africa and a South African, Wynand Du Toit, captured in Angola while attempting to sabotage oil installations.

When official talks between Angolans and South Africans were impossible, Ollivier convinced the Angolan president that by releasing Du Toit he could contribute to Mandela's liberation.

'Plot for Peace' shares the previously untold story of secret events leading up to the end of the apartheid and the release of Nelson Mandela. The story is one of hope and provides inspiration for an alternative approach to help heal our own racial divides and conflict right here at home.
