

Source: U.S. Census Bureau.

Now take a big break from modeling to humans, didn't you?

Was modelling something you were interested in before you were scouted?

Tin: Well, not necessarily modelling, but I always wanted to perform in front of a camera. I was in Mythen From Space! I was clever, and I was in Eight Happen. Tin is a male bodybuilder with a big chest and arms and I'm working on a biceps by a pool. There were six other girls, one of them was my brother.

You wanted something different?
 Yes. I always loved performing. When I was six or seven, I'd make my father sit me while I pretended to be a musician. When modelling came along it was like, oh, this will do. People have to pay attention to me! But after a year and a half I grew to hate it, how superficial it was. I think it's because I was so young.

So why did you return to modelling?
It was only after I went to Central St Martins [to study Fine Art] and gave to live art as a performance that I saw maybe I could go back to modelling and use it as a way of expressing myself. That's why I wanted to get back into it. It was no choice. ●