Subject: Camera

My camera went to the camera doctor and specialists (B&H) where they managed to remove the polarizing filter. They said it was jammed.

I spoke to them about the striations of colored light we get on the photos that we take out the airplane window and whether this was a result of the polarizing filter. The guy said it was unlikely and is probably just caused from the airplane window. I somehow still think it could be the filter. Anyway, the filter is off now so you can try it without.

[REDACTED] has the camera with her, I have downloaded the pics from the memory card onto my computer. [REDACTED] I will put a copy of them on your desk. They are also still on the card in case JE wants to download them onto his computer or look at them. There is still space on the card for more pics and if you run out and need to delete you can as I have all the photos currently on the card saved.
